DAVEY'S PLAN OF RELIEF IS SIDETRACKED

Stop-Gap Measure Gets Committee Endorsement
After Bitter Fight

Be Continued, Belief

Columbus, O., May 22.—(P)—The house finance committee recommended, 14 to 6, today, a passage of stop-gap legislation to meet Ohio's pressing relief needs pending study of a long-term proposal by Gov. Martin L. Davey.

The committee will report its recommendation next week. If the house approves the stop-gap plan, it then will go to the senate where Democratic Leader Paul P. Yoder has indicated it will be endorsed.

Under the stop-gap plan, the time for counties to make repayments to a $3,000,000 rotary fund would be extended from May 15 to July 15.

Governor Davey has urged speedy passage of his $11,500,000 long-term program, but it met opposition from numerous county relief officials.

The officials, from Cuyahoga, Lucas, Allen, Ashtabula, and Muskingum counties, asserted that the administration proposal would be inadequate for their needs. They said that the five per cent maximum allowance for administration of the proposal would meet but half their costs, and added that their counties could not put up half the relief funds as the measure proposed.

They gave the stop-gap proposal, which would extend the deadline for counties to repay funds borrowed from the $3,000,000 rotary relief fund from May 15 to July 15, only tentative backing. They said it would do them little good but might enable them to get along until a long-term program developed.

These officials favored the administration bill proposal to allocate funds on the basis of need only, instead of on a basis of 1933 expenditures, as the present law provides. However, Senate Floor Leader Paul P. Yoder predicted the senate would insist on retention of some definite formula.

Industrial Mobilization Planned By Britain as War Preparedness

By G. H. ANDERSON.

London, May 22.—(P)—Great Britain stepped up its plans for mobilization of the nation's industries in the event of war today after a House of Commons debate emphasized the difficulty of holding the Mediterranean in case of conflict with Italy.

A vast program for facilitating munitions production, speeding up supply of airplane, protecting the "lifeline of the empire" and providing food supplies for the civil population in any future war time began to take shape.

Two major situations apparently were involved in the preparations:

1. The Italo-Ethiopian, in which Viscount Cranborne, parliamentary under-secretary for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons yesterday the British government "is taking and will take most energetic steps" to clear up the whereabouts of L. J. Bonner, Red Cross worker reported arrested at Dire-dawa.

2. The Palestine-Egypt affairs, in which Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin told Commons Britain would not tolerate foreign interference.

Italy's ambassador to Britain, Lino Grandi, conferred late yesterday with Sir Robert G. Van Sittart, permanent under-secretary for foreign affairs, in what authoritative sources said was a general discussion of the Ethiopian situation.

The press inclined to connect the conference with unofficial Italian suggestions that Britain should withdraw the guard from its Addis Ababa legation, rather than any new efforts for conciliation.

In the Holy Land, where Baldwin said Britain "intends to discharge its responsibilities to the full" under its protectorate, a British policeman was wounded in Arab-Jewish disorders at Jerusalem and troop reinforcements were sent from Egypt.

Parts of the rearmament program to meet such difficulties were disclosed by Sir Thomas W. H. Inskip, minister of defense coordination, yesterday to the House of Commons.

The government offered subsidization for automobile manufacturers entering the field of airplane production to speed up the supply of much-needed aircraft.

The Laborite Lieut.-Commander R. T. G. Fletcher told commons last night an alternate cape route to the Far East should be developed in view of the problems of controlling the Mediterranean which would be raised in any war with Italy.

THEY GET 229 YEARS IN PRISON

Michael Livingston

Emil Reck

Unemotionally and with an apparent lack of imagination that characterized their trial, Michael Livingston, left, 17, and Emil Reck, 19, hear a jury in Chicago find them guilty of the slaying of Dr. Silber C. Peacock, child specialist, and fix their sentences at 30 years and 199 years in the penitentiary, respectively. The two were members of a group of four youths convicted in the case, the other two having been sentenced to 199 years in prison each.

INSANITY DEFENSE INDICATED AS MURDER TRIAL PROGRESSES

New York, May 22.—(P)—The state's case against John Florenza, charged with strangling Nancy Titterton, fiction writer, was concluded today after witness attempted to trace a 13-inch cord found beside her body.

Edward H. Ruthenberg, wholesale wine dealer, said the state's exhibit was "similar" to the twin he sold to Theodore Kruger, upholsterer, who employed Florenza as his assistant.

The cord was found in a bathtub under the nude body of Mrs. Titterton, in her Beekman Place apartment. Police testified the 24 year old defendant admitted using it to bind the woman's wrists as she pleaded with him not to hurt her. She was attacked and strangled April 19.

Henry Klauber, counsel for Florenza, asked dismissal of the indictment after the state rested. General Session Judge Charles C. Nott denied the motion.

The defense then called Florenza's aged mother as the first witness. Sobbing she took the stand but was dismissed after Klauber made several efforts to elicit answers to his questions.

Florenza's stepfather, Ignazio Cupani, testifying through an interpreter in support of the defense contention Florenza is insane, said the defendant acted queerly, always looking back when he walked in the street, and sometimes putting his hands to his head and saying "who is calling me?"

RIVAL CANDIDATES ASK DOUBLE RECOUNT

East Liverpool, O., May 22.—(P)—Oliver C. Vodrey of East Liverpool and John E. Smith, St. Clair Township, candidates for republican nomination for commissioner in the May 12 primary, requested a double recount of votes involving all precincts in Columbiana county.

Vodrey, who defeated Smith by one vote according to the present count, asked for recounts in 55 villages and township precincts. Smith requests another count in a like number of precincts in four cities.

CHARGES OF MURDER FACING 7 MEMBERS OF SECRET SOCIETY

"BLACK LEGIONNAIRES" ARE ACCUSED OF KILLING
YOUNG WIFE BEATER

Detroit, May 22.—(P)—Police Inspector John I. Navarre said today that seven members of the Black Legion, black-robed secret society of night riders, would be charged with murder in the "ritual slaying" of Charles A. Poole, found shot to death beside a suburban road May 13.

Sixteen officers of the society were held for investigation. Navarre said four of them had confessed participating in the "execution" of the young WPA workers after he was accused of beating his wife.

Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea took statements from the 16, whose organization, he said, was known public as "The Wolverine Republican Club," although it had no connection with the Republican party.

Alfred E. Farrell and Lou Chamberlain, sheriff's investigators, said the men told a detailed story of terroristic activity by the society despite fears for their lives because of their statements. The men told the investigators the Black Legion had members throughout the country.

WOMAN IMPLICATED IN EXTORTION PLOT

ERIE, PA., NOTARY PUBLIC IS CALLED FOR QUESTIONING

New York, May 22.—(P)—Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings said today that Margaret Flynn, Notary Public, of Erie, Pa., had been subpoenaed to testify before the grand jury investigating the blackmail plot charged by Alfred E. Smith, Jr.

Hastings said the young woman's name appeared "on several documents we have found in connection with the case." He said she had been in the hotel where Smith allegedly the trust occurred through which he eventually was muled of $12,900.

Max D. Krone, a private detective and A. H. Ross, Brooklyn lawyer, have been indicted on charges of extortion.

"TAX ON TAXES" ELIMINATED FROM TAX PLAN

Jury Awards Margie Dill $5,000 In Sensational Alienation Suit Against Socially Prominent In-laws

Ex-Senator, Uncle of Boy-Husband, Says He Will Appeal—Discarded Wife Says, "I Got My Satisfaction"

Mt. Vernon, O., May 22.—(P)—A $5,000 verdict for Margie Heaton Dill in her $25,000 alienation of affections suit against former Sen. C. C. Dill and Mrs. Grace Dill headed the case today toward higher court.

"I will appeal to the highest courts of the state before I will pay a penny in this case," Dill said as he left for Washington, D. C., late yesterday, just before a common pleas jury brought in the verdict for the second time.

L. C. Stillwell, counsel for the Dills, said "the case undoubtedly will be appealed." He has three weeks in which to present an appeal.

Judge Philip L. Wilkins accepted the verdict an hour and a half after refusing a similar one on the ground that the jury had failed to answer adequately an interrogatory in which he required explanation for connecting the former senator with the case if a judgment were given against him.

Mrs. Grace Dill, mother-in-law of Margie Heaton Dill, refused to comment on the verdict at her home in Fredericktown. Margie Heaton Dill charged in her complaint that her mother-in-law and the former Senator from Spokane, Wash., an uncle by marriage, alienated the affections of Wendell Dill, with whom she eloped after school romance and arranged an illegal operation a month after their marriage in 1934.

There was no reference in the verdict to the alleged illegal operation.

"I don't care about the money," Margie Heaton Dill said after the verdict. "I got my satisfaction."

It was learned that the jury of eight women and four men stood nine to three almost from the beginning of deliberations for Margie Heaton Dill and soon agreed upon the sum. Discussion of Judge Wilkins' interrogatory occupied most of the time the jury was out, this source said.

The jury received the case after three days of sensational testimony and argument.

Defense counsel accused the dark-eyed, farm girl and stenographer of attempting to "extort" money from the Dills. Her attorneys countered by describing her as an innocent young girl "cast off like an old shoe" by her husband's socially prominent family.

Stillwell asserted the marriage failed because Margie Heaton Dill refused to explain rumors of affairs with other boys.

FATHER GETS LIMIT FOR BEATING CHILD

Cincinnati, May 22.—(P)—Terminating the case the "most outrageous" in his bench experience, Municipal Judge Otis Hess sentenced Robert Green, 28, a cook, to the limit of six months in the workhouse and a fine of $100 and costs today for cruelty to his 8-year-old son, Robert Jr.

The judge ordered the child stripped to his waist in court. He then counted fifty welts made by a whip with which his father was charged with beating him.

Green, who came to Cincinnati from Knoxville, Tenn., a year ago, said he whipped the child to break him of a habit of loitering on the streets late at night.

Judge Hess ordered the child turned over to the Ohio Humane Society.

HUSBAND CONFESSES KILLING WIFE—LOVE TRIANGLE BARED

Oregon, Ill., May 22.—(P)—Guy Tallmadge's dreams of marital happiness with an auburn-haired widow were shattered today as the state launched an effort to send him to the electric chair for the slaying of his wife.

Tallmadge, 58-year-old Rockford embalmer, was called to a formal arraignment on a murder warrant based on the killing of his wife, Bessie, 53.

State's Attorney S. Donald Crowell said he would seek an indictment from a grand jury Saturday.

In a confession announced by Crowell yesterday Tallmadge—a middle sized man with Pince Nez glasses and the dignified mien of his trade—said he shot his wife

Flood Control Measure Moves Toward Finale with Alterations

Washington, May 22.—(P)—The Senate Finance Committee, in another stormy session, agreed today to eliminate from its new compromise corporation tax plan a "tax on taxes."

It was estimated this decision would mean a loss of $40,000,000 in revenue.

Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) said the new plan as altered should raise at least $529,000,000 of additional money over existing law. That would be added approximately $100,000,000 expected from a "wind-fall" tax on processors who evaded payment of AAA processing levies.

The tax on tax payments would have resulted from the fact that money used to pay a projected flat 18 per cent tax on total corporation income, since it would not have been distributed to stockholders, would have been subject to a 7 per cent levy on undistributed corporation earnings.

President Roosevelt wants congress to provide $792,000,000 of additional revenue annually for three years and $620,000,000 annually thereafter.

Committee sources estimated the senate compromise as it now stands would raise around $629,000,000 for one year and $529,000,000 in succeeding years.

Harrison said, however, he hoped the bill in ultimate form would bring in the revenue sought by the president, indicating that some changes might be made to that end.

The $398,000,000 Overton bill for flood control works in the lower Mississippi valley was passed today by the house by a 162 to 156 vote.

DR. TOWNSEND WALKS OUT ON INVESTIGATORS

Father of Pension Plan
Facing Contempt Action
As Result of Bolt

SENSATIONS FOLLOW

Share-the-Wealth Leader
Joins His Fight

By SCOTT HERSHEY

Washington, May 22.—(P)—The possibility of a court trial of Dr. F. E. Townsend for his defiance of a house investigating committee was projected today by Speaker Byrns.

Terming the pension leader's walk-out on the committee "a plain case of contempt," the speaker told reporters:

"I expect the house to take whatever action is recommended by the committee."

After a conference with the group headed by Representative Bell (D. Mo.), Byrns said he believed that instead of arresting and bringing Townsend before the bar of the house, the committee possibly would offer a resolution referring the case to the United States attorney's office.

This step, he said, would be with a view to having an indictment brought against the physician in the District of Columbia courts, charging Townsend with contempt of the house.

Byrns said he did not expect the committee to bring the matter before the house until some time next week.

As Speaker Byrns spoke, Townsend, in Baltimore, said he'd rather go to jail than submit to further congressional investigation of his plan to pay $200 a month to everyone past 60.

Amid an uproar, the elderly retired doctor bolted the hearing yesterday, protested against "this Communistic dictatorship" in Washington and established headquarters in a Baltimore hotel.

Dr. Townsend was not the only one of his organization to leave the capital. In the small hours of the morning, every member of the personnel staff occupying 13 rooms in an office building here departed for Chicago, where new national headquarters will be established.

MEN CONVICTED OF ALTERING POST-MARK ASK SUPREME COURT FOR REVERSAL

BLOOMINGBURG HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES CLASS OF EIGHTEEN

Dr. W. C. Craig of Capital University, Delivers Interesting Address and Diplomas Are Presented by Sup't. O. O. Bush

Bloomington, May 22—Eighteen graduates of the Bloomington high school received their diplomas in the annual commencement exercises held in the school auditorium last night, every seat being taken for the exercises marking the close of the school year.

The stage was attractively arranged with the class colors of blue and gold featured, and large baskets of red roses and red peonies flanking the stage. The class motto, "Let Us be Known By Our Deeds" was carried in large letters over the front of the stage.

The class was seated in a semi circle on the stage with members of the faculty behind them.

The girls in the class, all dressed in white, carried arm bouquets of American Beauty Roses, and the boys wore American beauty rose buds in their coat lapels.

Sup't. O. O. Bush introduced Dr. W. C. Craig, of the public speaking department, Capital University, who gave the class address, lasting 30 minutes, speaking on the theme "What of Tomorrow?"

Dr. Craig proved a very interesting speaker, and left a real impressive message with the graduates.

Dr. Craig said that tomorrow these graduates set out on the goal ahead of them, and urged them to have a very definite goal. "Don't let anyone tell you that there are no opportunities, for the world never had so many needs as it has today. Necessity is the mother of invention, and right now the necessity is great," he told the class.

Dr. Craig said:

"You can achieve the goal ahead of you, first, by concentration. Second, by clear thinking. Third, by faith—in God, in your fellowmen and in yourself. Fifth, by sincerity. Sixth, by consideration of others.

"Too frequently we live indefinitely. We need more positive living. Be true to your dreams. Have dreams—ambitious dreams, and then go forward to achieve them. Men must look up. The present day is a great challenge to young people. It's all up to you. Go forth and win."

Superintendent O. O. Bush presented the class honors. First went to William Scott, who had won third honors in the State in the senior achievement contest, and was the only student in Ohio making a perfect grade in mathematics. The award carries with it a two year scholarship in Ohio State University. Second went to Jean Elizabeth Garringer, a scholarship in Wilmington college.

Superintendent Bush then distributed the diplomas, after which Mrs. Elliott presented diplomas to a large number of Eighth Graders and awarded honors. Charles Martin McCoy, it was announced, had won fifth place in the state in the eighth grade contest. He was given first honors.

Following the distribution of diplomas, relatives and friends filed upon the stage to congratulate the graduates.

Graduates—Guy Carter, Jr., Donald Friend, Jean Garringer, Robert Hains, Helen Houseman, Robert Hughes, Virginia Kelley, Robt. Garringer, Anna Lois Leach, Johnny McCoy, William McCoy, Ruth Newland, William Scott, Carey Short, Gladys Stephenson, Andrew Thompson, Donna Thornton, Juanita Weaver.

The school orchestra under direction of Miss Mazie Kessler played three numbers, and the girl's glee club under direction of Miss Rosalind Wilson, music supervisor, sang "Morning" by Grieg, and the mixed glee club directed by Mrs. Maude Howland sang "Summer Winds, Blow," Strauss. Rev. John Glenn, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, offered prayer and also pronounced benediction.

Which Resulted in Sentence of 2 Years in Prison and $1,000 Fine

Washington, May 22—(P)—Three men appealed today to the Supreme Court from two-year prison sentences and $1,000 fines as a result of their conviction of participation in a scheme to qualify a late bid on a Post Office construction contract by altering a postmark.

Those appealing were Pharaoh W. Johnson, president of the P. W. Johnson Construction Company, William Dow Johnson, superintendent, and Orville Setters, an employee. The company, incorporated in Kentucky, operated there and in Ohio and West Virginia. It won a contract for erection of a post office at Portsmouth, Ohio, on a late bid of $188,900.

Government witnesses testified P. W. Johnson attended a public opening of bids November 30, in Washington on the Ohio job, and then communicated with his cousin, W. D. Johnson, who made out a bid of $3,000 under the lowest.

Setters was then said to have induced Beatrice Seaton, assistant postmistress at Garrison, Ky., to predate the postmark on the envelope containing the bid to November 29, 1934, so that it qualified and won the contract.

Attorneys for the Johnsons contended they should have been allowed a separate trial from Setters. They also contended previous late bids the firm had submitted on public works projects at Montgomery and Parkersburg, W. Va., should not have been admitted as evidence at the trial.

Both these bids also carried a Garrison, Ky., postmark, and were late. However, a later and lower bid won the Parkersburg contract on a courthouse job, while the Montgomery Post Office project was not awarded because all bids were regarded too high.

Attorneys for the three men asked the highest court to reverse lower federal courts by finding vital links in the scheme had not been proved, but were supplied by inference only.

GEO. N. SQUIRES ENDS HIS LIFE

Hangs Self in Coal Shed Friday Morning

George Nathaniel Squires, 80, well known in this city and community and a former resident of Bloomington, ended his life in a coal shed at his home at 814 East Temple street Friday forenoon between ten and eleven o'clock, by hanging himself to a rafter, using an insulated electric light cord such as used for electric irons.

He had left the house about 10:10 and was found about 10:40, being dead when found.

He had placed the cord about a rafter, stepped upon a five gallon paint can, —adjusted—the cord about his neck and stepped off the can.

Dr. C. C. Hazard, county coroner, was summoned and conducted an inquiry, after which the body was removed to the Klever Funeral Home and prepared for burial.

Squires had lived in this city for many years, and was well known among race horse men, having been a trainer and caretaker of race horses for many years.

For sometime he had been in poor health.

He is survived by his widow and two sons, Faye, this city, and Harry, of Columbus.

TOLD HIM NOT TO SHE IS MUMBLING WHEN FOUND ON OHIO RIVER BRIDGE.

Cincinnati, May 22.—(P)—Police checked today the statements of a hysterical girl, fearful that her companion had leaped from an Ohio river bridge.

The only intelligible sentences hospital attendants could make out were: "I told him not to. I didn't mean it. Don't jump, Johnny."

Motorists said they saw a man standing near the girl a short time before the toll collector found her lying hysterical on the walk near the Cincinnati end of the bridge.

Sergt. Fred Schlosser said the girl, a blonde of about 18, mumbled a name that sounded like "Mildred Davies" of Newport.

SECOND VICTIM DIES RESULT OF ACCIDENT

Xenia, Ohio.—(P)—Mrs. Alonzo Spahr died Friday, second victim of a peculiar accident in which she collided with Elmer Gilman, 4, as he carried a can of burning kerosene from her home Wednesday.

The child died of burns suffered when the flaming fluid was splattered over his body. Mrs. Spahr, 65, suffered the burns which caused her death in trying to tear off the boy's clothing.

"Tax On Taxes" Eliminated From Tax Plan

The bill returns to the senate with amendments which sponsors said would "destroy" the bill unless stricken out.

The most controverted amendment requires local interest to provide the cost of acquiring necessary lands and rights of way.

Another amendment increased the $272,000,000 authorizations as the bill passed the senate by $126,000,000 by including construction of 26 reservoirs on the Arkansas and White Rivers.

BURNED BODY FOUND

TORCH MURDER SCENTED IN NEW ENGLAND MYSTERY

Chesterfield, N. H., May 22.—(P)—The charred and broken body of an unidentified woman, apparently slain, Sheriff Frank J. Bennett said, by setting fire to her oil-soaked body, was found today on lonely Mt. Wantastiquet.

A .22 calibre pistol was found a few feet from the body. One shoe blackened by smoke, and possibly her teeth, Acting Medical Examiner Norris Robertson said, were the only clues to the woman's identity. She apparently was between 20 and 40 years old.

Dr. Robertson said as far as he could ascertain her skull was not fractured.

Medical and police authorities agreed the woman's death "could not possibly have been suicide."

MERGER OF RADICAL REFORM GROUPS NOW MANEUVERED

Even the furniture was loaded in vans headed for the same destination.

Charging the committee with an "unfair and unfriendly attitude" and with asking "vicious questions to besmirch" his character, he said he would return only if arrested.

Joining him in this battle against the committee was Gerald K. Smith, a leader in the late Senator Huey P. Long's share-the-wealth movement. Smith said "what the Townsend movement needs is a little action a la Huey Long."

He and Townsend issued a joint statement, through Representative Main (R. Mich.), in which they protested against the "Communist dictatorship" and said:

"The assassination of Huey Long and the persecution of Dr. Townsend calls for action."

As Smith and Dr. Townsend walked out of the committee hearing room arm-in-arm, committee members shouted "Stop him!" and "Close the door."

But the doctor was gone, with the applause and cheers of groups of Townsend sympathizers echoing after him.

Chairman Bell (D. Mo.) immediately called an executive session of the committee. Members decided to prepare a resolution recommending that the house cite Dr. Townsend for contempt.

Representative Gavagan (D. N. Y.) said Townsend's "house of cards is about to collapse on him."

When Smith returned to Washington from Baltimore last night, he said he and Doctor Townsend planned some "real big meetings" and indicated they probably would confer with Father Coughlin, Detroit radio priest.

Smith said it was too early to comment on a possible fusion of his and Townsend's forces with Father Coughlin's Union of Social Justice.

"But it is inevitable that this big mass movement must crystallize," said Smith. "The real political movements are among the people, not in the political parties."

POLITICAL FACTIONS IN PITCHED BATTLE

Gjoevik, Norway.—(P)—Rival Nazis and Communists of Norway fought a pitched battle Friday in which six Nazis were wounded seriously and an undetermined number less seriously.

Police reinforcements were rushed from the capital, Oslo, to halt the conflict.

Several hundred Communists, including a number of women, raided a Nazi meeting place, throwing stones and scrap iron.

NEGRO ELECTROCUTED

Cleveland, May 22.—(P)—Federal Judge Samuel H. West has acquitted James Mueche of Niles, O., former pugilist, of charges of passing counterfeit bills.

Testimony was offered that Mueche passed the bills at an alleged gambling house at Campbell, O., but the prosecution could not show that Mueche was linked with the counterfeit ring which manufactured the bills.

NO GOLDEN WEDDING AGED COUPLE DIE

Cadiz, O.—(P)—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gambs would have observed their golden wedding anniversary Friday.

He died Thursday. His widow died Friday.

From plans for honoring the marriage of the aged couple, friends turned to preparing double funeral services.

MARKETS and FINANCIAL NEWS

DAY'S ACTIVITIES IN WALL STREET

By VICTOR EUBANK

New York, May 22.—(P)—Stocks climbed quietly in today's market, many leading issues recovering fractions to 2 points, with a few holding wider advances.

More cognizance apparently was taken of satisfactory corporate statements, dividends and general economic news. There was a little late profit taking but the close was firm. Transfers approximated 650,000 shares.

The utilities pointed the upward way for shares, and steel, farm implement, merchandising and rail equities followed.

Among the best performers of the session were American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, American Water Works, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, J. I. Case, Continental Can, Gen Foods, International Harvester, Chrysler, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Phillips Petroleum, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Philip Morris, Westinghouse, Zenith Radio, Sandoz, F. N. Y. Central and Southern Pacific.

Bonds and foreign currencies were narrowly mixed. Wheat was 1/2 to 3/4 cent a bushel improved, and corn was down 1/2 to 3/4.

agencies for counties was indicated. The house adopted a conference committee report and favorable action in the senate was predicted. Each county under 40,000 population would be entitled to five liquor stores or agencies, and one additional liquor store for each 30,000 over 40,000. Officials were unable to estimate how many outlets would be added to the present 135 stores and 95 agencies.

Rep. George H. Kirkpatrick (R. Knox) introduced a bill to postpone reappraisal of real estate, scheduled for next year, until 1942. Chairman P. E. Ward (R. Geauga) of the taxation committee, to which it was referred, said counties were unable to pay for a general reappraisal this year.

FLOOR HINTS

Don't overlook the fact that the flooring used can make a room seem larger or smaller. For instance, the greater number of strips in narrow flooring tend to make a room look larger, while wide flooring makes it appear smaller.

When laying a new wood floor over an old one it is a wise precaution to place heavy building felt between the two floors. This will help to insure dryness, and even tends to make the room more soundproof.

If the budget must be seriously considered, there are soft woods which are serviceable and beautiful. Look into what the market offers in Douglas fir and southern pine.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY PRESENTED TO FULL HOUSE ON FIRST NIGHT

Comedy in 3 Acts Developed With Unusual Characterizations Through Difficult Dialects in Speaking Parts—Scenes Colorful Against Background of College Romance

"Guess Again," a comedy in three acts, was presented Thursday night at the school auditorium by the Senior Class of Washington High School. It was humorous and entertaining throughout.

The play, written by Glenn Hughes, had many difficult dialect speaking parts. It was capably directed by Ross A. Wagner, instructor in the public speaking department of the local school, and the cast did excellent work.

The romantic interest of the play centered in Janet Moore and Bill Douglas, a college girl and a college boy at the Inn, which staged the scenes. Guests came from far and near, and the combination of characters and interests were cleverly interwoven.

Helen Spear Worrell and Bill Thompson took the parts of very-much-in-love collegians with splendid spirit, their acting exceptionally good for amateurs. Miss Worrell, as Janet Moore, was graceful and pretty as a picture, wearing colorful gowns, and "Bill," in smart togs a melancholic college youth.

Charles Osborn, as Waldo Ellis, took a star comedial role with immense cleverness and made a big hit. He played the part of a stage-struck porter in the hotel and his success in speaking different dialects was outstanding.

Sportily dressed Thurman Minton portrayed the part of the quiet, eccentric Lord Wiggleton, English nobleman. His valet, Bertie Blodgett, with a fine English dialect, was capably carried out by Gail Day.

Charles Kelly, as the movie magnate, Sol Messer, provided the play with a good dialect and ability to fit the role.

Lora Mae, played by Betty Cline, daughter of old-fashioned Mrs. Skinner, played by Janice Woollard, a guest at the hotel, displayed the necessary flippancy her role required. Miss Woollard threw herself into her part admirably.

Others in the cast who played their roles well were: Henry Grimes, played by Gaines Crabtree. Grimes was a poor business man, losing money rapidly as the manager of the inn. Olive Ordway, a health faddist, played by Mary Alice Thompson; Marcella Jenks, a reporter, played by Ruth Wendt; Renee Lamour, the designing actress; S. H. Pratt, the hard-boiled banker, played by Dwight Coffman, and Lula Perkins, a newspaper columnist, played by Madeline Baker.

In the high spots of the turbulent story, which revolved around the English lords, Henry Grimes has quite a time making his hotel.

Works on 'Peace Roll'

Mme. Clara Guthrie d'Arcis

From her home in Geneva, Switzerland, Mme. Clara Guthrie d'Arcis recently arrived in America to promote the cause of international peace. She is visiting American manufacturers to ask them to sign a "peace roll of industry" which will be organized in 56 countries by the Peace and Disarmament committee comprising 45,000,000 women members throughout the world. Mme. d'Arcis was born in New Orleans, but married a Swiss business man with whom she owns an importing business in Geneva.

Edgewater Inn, located on the California coast, pay enough to meet expenses. In short, business was nothing-flat, especially flat.

Janet Moore, who had a job at the hotel, was followed to Edgewater by her college sweetheart, Bill Douglas. Douglas, exhausting his funds, tried to get a position at the inn but to no avail.

When Lord Wiggleton arrived at the hotel, incognito, Douglas, who saw a chance for a publicity stunt to increase business, told Marcella Jenks, the news hound, that he was Lord Wiggleton and the story was printed. Meanwhile, another Englishman, who is really Bertie Blodgett, the valet, comes to the hotel and signs as Lord Wiggleton. After the papers have been told that both Englishmen are staying at the Edgewater, the Lord and his valet leave. Finally they come back to save the day and explain why they always change names.

Consequently, Bill gets a position for the increase in business and the entire cast leaves the stage doing the "up-lift" walk, taught by the health faddist, Olive Ordway.

Others helping to make the play a success were:

Property manager, James Cole;

cue guard, Jean Fortney; wardrobe mistresses, Kathryn Ferdinand and Betty Anne Smith; wardrobe master, Robert Andrews; electrician, Frank Weade; business manager, Anna Lois Engle; advertising manager, Betty Nisley; faculty adviser, Miss Gladys Meison; make-up staff, Susan Sheppard, Carolyn Craig, (Jr.), Rebecca Ruley (Jr.), Barbara Brock (Jr.), G. B. Vance; ushers, Emma Jean Wilson, Helen Wood, Jane White, Claribel Crono, Jean Hughes.

The play is repeated Friday night.

CRADLE TYPE PHONES RENTAL REDUCTION

NO BELL COMPANY ASKS UTILITY COMMISSION TO PERMIT ACTION

A reduction of 10 cents a month in the charge for cradle-type telephones was asked today by The Bell Telephone Company, according to W. M. Fryman, local commercial manager of the company.

In a petition filed with the Public Utilities Commission at Columbus, the telephone company asked permission to cut the present charge of 15 cents a month to 10 cents a month, effective July 1. The 15-cent charge would apply for three years, as does the present 25-cent charge, resulting in a saving of 60 on the fee for each cradle telephone. The cradle charge now is $9.00 over the three-year period. The new charge would total 40. Telephone officials explained that subscribers who previously had cradle telephones will be given credit for the amounts they have paid for them, if they have the instruments re-installed within two years. Payment credits will be granted for cradle instruments disconnected any time prior to July 1, 1935, if they are re-installed by July 1, 1937, it was stated.

Any subscriber who previously had a cradle telephone and has already paid $5.40 for it, but had it removed for any reason, may have it re-installed without charge within two years after its disconnection, the officials said.

TEAM RUNS AWAY YOUTH IS HURT

When a team of horses attached to a wagon became frightened and ran away, Thursday, Donald, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Mossbarger, residing on the Greenfield road a few miles south of this city, sustained severe injuries when the team ran into a tree at the roadside, damaging the wagon and breaking the harness.

The young man's chief injury consisted of ligaments torn in his right heel and ankle, which will prevent him from using the foot for weeks. He was also bruised and muscles sprained.

The accident took place on a side road near his home.

And, as the condemned man said, when the executioner completed testing the rope: "Good noose is sometimes had news."

Mail Man's Vacation Spent On Long Hike

BUT HE MAY QUIT BECAUSE FELLOW HIKERS "KID" HIM

Albany, N. Y., May 22—(AP)—The MacFadden Health Hikers headed westward with one, M. C. Borror of Rome, Ohio, threatened to quit not because of blisters or bad feet, but "kidding."

The 57 other walkers, curious about a blue shirt he has worn, have discovered that he is a letter carrier spending his two weeks' vacation walking.

Borror left the state capital behind, as he and the others headed for Amsterdam today, declaring that he could "take off the pounds and take on the miles."

But he objected good-naturedly to the "kidding" of his fellow hikers.

The party, on a 410-mile hike from New York to Danville, is slightly behind schedule and has stepped up its daily mileage to 39.

TOO MUCH NOISE TWO ARE CITED

Unnecessary honking of an automobile horn by a driver parked in the up-town street, Thursday night, resulted in the man being cited to appear in court for the offense, and a driver operating a truck without proper muffler was also cited to appear.

Unnecessary noise of motors and disturbing honking of auto horns is taboo, and the police are under instructions to bring all violators into court.

Testimony Comes to Spectacular Wind-up in Trial of Frank Brothers with Wm. Reinhart, Ex-Chief of Division, in Verbal Clash and Near Fist Fight

Columbus, O., May 22—(AP)—A spirited exchange of words and a near fist fight between two witnesses brought an end today to testimony in the trial of Frank L. Brothers, charged with embezzling $13,000 from the State Conservation Division while he was its chief accountant.

The excitement developed with the recalling to the stand of William Reinhart, former head of the division, who denied yesterday he ordered Brothers to deposit state funds in a personal account, instead of placing them with the state treasurer as required by law.

Reinhart shouted "no" when defense counsel asked him if he knew Butler C. Bond of Columbus and his daughter, Mary Bond. Brothers' counsel called Bond and his daughter before the witness stand but Reinhart denied any recollection of them.

Counsel then asked Reinhart whether in 1934 he had not said to Brothers in Bonds' presence, "I make laws around here. You do as I say or you will be fired."

"No," Reinhart exclaimed, "I never fired the head of any department. I should have done it."

Later in a corridor Reinhart told Bond he did not remember him.

"Is there anything the matter with you?" Bond inquired.

"You can't talk to me that way; you're just a little spot in my life. I'll slap your face," Reinhart told Bond.

Bailiffs separated them. Assistant Prosecutor Forrest

PILOT FIGHTS WITH GIRL TO HALT SUICIDE LEAP

Plane is Landed with One Hand While Other Grips Passenger's Curls

Boston, May 22.—(AP)—A young woman who, Pilot Charles W. Sutherland said, attempted to leap from an airplane yesterday and was restrained only after a furious struggle, was identified today, psycho-pathic hospital authorities announced, as Sue Lino, 29, a Boston domestic.

Dr. Riley H. Guthrie, executive physician of the hospital, said the girl had admitted her identity and explained she was employed in the household of a Boston attorney. Members of the family, whose name was withheld, later came to the hospital and identified her, Dr. Guthrie said.

Dr. Guthrie did not offer any explanation for the girl's behavior yesterday other than to say she was in a state of "extreme mental depression" and would be held at the hospital 10 days for observation.

Shaken from his experience, Sutherland, veteran pilot for Inter-city Airlines, brought his plane to a perfect landing at East Boston Airport yesterday one hand grasping the ship's "stick" the other entwined in the curly, chestnut locks of his passenger's bobbed hair.

Airport attaches, answering Sutherland's cries for aid, held the woman, about 24 years old, until police arrived.

At police headquarters Capt. William D.D. Donovan said her only response to questions was:

"Just give me a gun."

She wept, but refused to talk later at Boston Psychopathic Hospital. She was held there under close watch pending "further developments," police said.

The pilot declared the woman struggled and twisted and scratched in an effort to get free. "She battled," he asserted, "like a wild-cat."

She had engaged the ship for an hour, supposedly for a sight seeing trip.

MEALS OFTEN FAIL TO GIVE NEEDED INTERNAL EXERCISE

ALL-BRAN Relieves Common Constipation*

Meals that are low in "bulk" are a common failing of the average American diet. Frequently, these meals result in irregular habits.

Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" is often a consequence. This condition causes discomfort, and may lead to headaches and loss of appetite. Even serious disease may develop.

Banish the danger of a diet low in "bulk" by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly. This delicious cereal is an abundant source of gentle "bulk."

Within the body, it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass, which exercises and strengthens intestinal muscles, and cleanses the system. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and contains iron.

Two tablespoonfuls daily, with milk or cream, are usually sufficient. If not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

How much pleasanter to enjoy this natural food in place of pills and drugs. Serve ALL-BRAN in some form each day, either as a cereal, or cooked into muffins, breads, etc. Eat it regularly for regular habits.

ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk."

POPPY DAY SALES MAY MAKE RECORD

COMPREHENSION PLANS HAVE BEEN MADE FOR CONDUCTING SALES

Saturday is Poppy Day throughout the United States and a large corps of volunteer workers from the local Auxiliary of Paul H. Hughey Post of the American Legion is ready to begin distribution of the flowers on the downtown streets early in the morning.

By evening the Auxiliary leaders hope to have practically everyone in the city wearing a poppy and to have raised funds which will assure continuance of the Unit's welfare activities during the coming year.

The residential sections will be canvassed by a number of students from the seventh and eighth grades of the local schools, who have volunteered their services so that none in the city will have missed an opportunity to wear one of these little red flowers that have meant employment to hundreds of disabled men receiving little or no government compensation and who could not possibly have done other work.

The poppies to be distributed here have been made in the Veterans' Hospital at Sandusky, Ohio.

The wives, mothers, sisters and daughters of the men of the Legion are giving their time and efforts gladly so that all will be called upon to wear the memorial flower of the World War dead and make contributions for the welfare of those who sacrificed health and strength as part of the price of the nation's World War. Poppy Day contributions are used to help the disabled veterans in the hospitals, to help their families at home, to aid children left without a father's support because of the war, and in all phases of Legion and Auxiliary's work for the war's living victims. Every penny is made to serve effectively.

Seize Bank Robber

Avery Simons

MOTION PICTURE VERSION OF PASSION PLAY COMING

The greatest of all Passion Plays, beautiful, enthralling, emotional, reverential, charming—the greatest religious story known to the screen world, is coming to Washington C. H., Tuesday, May 26, and will be shown at the Church of Christ at 7:30 and 9:15.

Thousands of people spend thousands of dollars going over to Oberammergau, Bavaria, to see The Passion Play in a language they do not understand. You can now see this gorgeous spectacle and greatest tutor of religion and ancient history that the world has ever known, just as if you traveled to Bavaria to witness the original stage production.

There is not an attraction before the world today in the way of an entertainment, so realistic, so impressive, soul-stirring, heart-reaching, and uplifting as this wonderful creation in moving picture form. That it is doing the world great good no one can deny. How grand the opportunity to witness these beautiful life-motion pictures passing before your eyes, unfolding in the most convincing and pleasing manner these scenes and incidents of Christ's life heretofore described in words only, and not understood by all.

A silver offering will be taken.

The words railways and railroads are used interchangeably. Some companies prefer one, some the other.

Bond of $100,000 was set for Avery Simons, described by federal agents as the "most notorious bank robber in America," when he was arraigned in Los Angeles, following his capture by G-men. They had sought him in every state in the union and 68 foreign countries. Simons was held in federal custody in Los Angeles awaiting his removal to Vermont where he is wanted in connection with the robbery of a bank at Danville.

The May Cool Spell

We have had proof this year that our fathers and their fathers before them, knew from experience that the warning not count on continued warm weather until after the twentieth of May, is fully justified.

This year the weather has been in line with the old rule. Some fine warm weather when many of us thought that surely we could count on warm weather continuing right along. Those who remembered the old warning and acted accordingly have been vindicated. The cold spell came but has done no damage.

For work in the fields, preparing the ground and planting, the last week's weather has been ideal. The ground "worked up" well, the men and horses were not worn out by excessive heat and the corn planted "popped up" in amazingly short time.

Never have we seen the fields more beautiful, richer green pastures, more luxuriant growing wheat and brown (all shades) of plowed fields. The rural sections are a picture, these days, of beauty and prosperity.

The Townsend Plan Probe

Just exactly what is back of the probe of the Townsend Plan is not really known. Of course we can presume, or guess, and, we believe come close to the real cause of it all.

Given only one guess we should guess it was politics and given a number of guesses we would still guess it was politics because there was a time when the Townsend Plan advocates threatened to become quite numerous, so numerous, in fact, there was a probability that they would "muss up" the campaign considerably and, possibly, might effect the result.

Facing that probability and possibility didn't please the political leaders in either party and immediately they began the work of demolishing the movement. Success has crowned their efforts. The Townsend Plan, for the present is dead. The probe has disclosed some very unpleasant features in connection with the management of the plan.

More than that it has disclosed that the plan is impractical, that Dr. Townsend is an honest dreamer who thinks the time has come to change the world's affairs into those of an Utopia. The same thing cannot be said of some of his managers however.

Asked by the probers, how much the managers of the campaign had collected thus far, from old people, Dr. Townsend replied "about one million dollars." And to the question what did they get for that million dollars paid, Dr. Townsend blandly replied "they got the organization and that's what they paid for."

And again we see that no matter if politics is back of the probe, as it has been in nearly all others, it has disclosed the folly of it all in time to check a movement which threatened to become very disturbing.

Toot Your Own Horn

For many years, to convey the thought that a certain individual was boosting himself and recounting his achievements for the purpose of creating an impression of his greatness we used the expression, "tooting his own horn."

Nowadays the old expression is being used again this time asking the owner of an automobile to toot his horn more frequently—not for his own glorification but for the safety of other motorists and pedestrians.

We have seen—all too frequently—motor vehicle drivers, whirl around corners into a line of pedestrians who are relying on the protection of the red light and giving not a single toot on the horn and, apparently, not giving a hoot about the pedestrians. The same thing is true regarding filling stations and garages. If the hurry up drivers do forget that pedestrians under some circumstances have the right of way they might try to remember that they have a horn to toot. By tooting their horn they can warn pedestrians on the sidewalks or at street intersections that they are coming through regardless.

Charles P. Stewart Says:

LANDON NOMINATION IS NOT A CINCH BET

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington, May 23—While Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas certainly is away ahead as a Republican presidential possibility (maybe even as a probability), he hasn't the air-tight clinch on the nomination that some folk seem to think.

On the first ballot at the Cleveland convention he will have more votes than any other single candidate but he will not have a majority over all.

He will have to scoop in the necessary majority from the supporters of other candidates, on the second or third ballot, in order to win. The odds are that he will succeed in doing it, but they are not very heavy odds.

If he fails to win by the third ballot, it will mean that there is a deliberate combination against him. That, in turn, will mean a deadlock. And a deadlock will mean that a compromise selection will have to be made. In that event the lightning is quite likely to strike someone whose name has not been mentioned at all.

POSSIBLE COMBINATION

In the first place ex-President Hoover is dead against the Kansan. He can't himself be nominated but he will have considerable influence. His opposition appears to be pure jealousy but there it is.

The big Republican bosses (Hills of New York, Roebuck of New England and Reed of Pennsylvania) evidently are anti-Landon. He's too liberal for them. But he's too conservative for the Borahites. Borah personally (it's obvious now that he can't be nominated) may not fight him but many of his supporters will.

The G. O. P. Old Guard and the Republican progressives will not exactly combine but that is what the effect will be on Landon's prospects if both groups, though for opposite reasons, are against him.

THOSE WHO CAN'T WIN

Then what? Borah's out. The jolts he has received in the primaries prove that. The primaries also have demonstrated that Col. Frank Knox lacks the requisite appeal.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan is even more distasteful to the Republican Old Guardsmen than Landon, while not much more in sympathy with the liberal faction.

Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon is even worse, from the conservative standpoint, than Vandenberg, but still not liberal enough for the progressives.

Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa is conservative enough for anyone, but assuredly would be no compromise with the liberals. He killed himself politically with his re-

MAN NAMED ELMER?

Well then, who? Echo remains silent. Unless Landon is nominated the Republicans' choice seems destined to be some Congressman John Smith or George Jones.

ROOSEVELT CONFIDENT

I have it on good authority that President Roosevelt recently said to his congressional supporters: "I'm all right. You fellows take care of your individual chances to be re-elected. Vote on pending bills as will be most helpful to you in your respective constituencies. Don't worry about administration policies."

High Spots In Ohio History

From the Galbraith collection of Ohio Histories. Written for the Associated Press.

There was a craze of emigration from central Ohio to some of the western states in the decade from 1850 to 1860. Columbus streets were every day filled with covered wagons of emigrants, and the farm stock which they were taking with them "on the hoof."

Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska and Kansas were the center of the area into which these migrants, mostly from Ohio, were moving. The continuous caravan contained both people from farms, which they had sold, and mechanics from the cities and towns.

The movement reached its height in 1857, but a return movement had set in even before. The migrants found that they had been duped by a description of the "futures west."

Poetry For Today

THE MUSIC OF THE HILLS

When first they burst upon my view,

Those hills in beauty clad,
Tears filled my eyes, joy thrilled me through,
Their beauty made me glad.

I never knew so many tints,
And shades, and hues could be;
The yellows with their golden glints
Made tuneful melody.

The greens ran up and down the scale,
Without discordant sound,
Staccato reds o'er hill and dale,
In never-ending round.

And purples, too, in many shades,
A minor strain so sweet,
And brown and rose in all the glades
Made the harmony complete.

If earth can give such rapturous thrills,
Lift minds to purity,
Erase our worries and our ills,
Then what must Heaven be?

TRAIL BLAZERS

Who Made Ohio History

By R. C. HALL

The first white man, so far as we know, who ever laid eyes on any part of what is now Ohio, was the French explorer La Salle. This intelligent, educated and handsome young Frenchman had accompanied some of his fellow countrymen to the "New World," and had learned the ways of the wild, the customs of the natives, and how to get along with them.

While living at Montreal, La Salle heard glowing tales of a wonderful river called the "Oyo" which lay to the southwest and which ultimately reached the "South Sea." He determined to find and explore it.

We do not know the exact route he followed but it was evidently up the St. Lawrence Valley to the headwaters of a stream flowing from the south, thence across a portage to the headwaters of the Ohio. After drifting down-stream for some time, he entered upon the Ohio as the English pronounced the word the Indians called "Oyo." But La Salle was so struck by the beauty that he called it "La Belle Riviere" which means "The Beautiful River."

La Salle drifted on down past the whole southern shore of what is now Ohio and to the Falls of the Ohio river where Louisville now stands. There his men deserted him and after a hard journey through the wilderness he reached Montreal. Later he appeared near the mouth of the Mississippi river and claimed its whole basin for France. Soon afterwards he was slain by a treacherous guide.

DARROW ON VISIT WITH OHIO FRIENDS

Warren, (A)—Clarence S. Darrow, 79, famed Chicago lawyer, visited his birthplace at nearby Kinsman Thursday, shook hands with old schoolmates and told one of his earliest lessons. "My first job was on a farm at $15 a month," he said. "I worked in the hay field one day and picked potato bugs half a day and then quit. I owe whatever success I had to hard work, a day and a half of it, and I've never worked hard since. That taught me a lesson."

Portugal issued this stamp in 1931 to commemorate the fifth centenary of the death of the celebrated Portuguese warrior, Nuno Alvares Pereira.

THE CALIFORNIA BUBBLE?

A NEW YORKER AT LARGE

By JACK STINNETT

New York—In Greenwich Village they are worrying about the increasing popularity of Vincent Van Gogh.

The proprietor of an art shop in Eighth street tells us Van Gogh prints have been selling like votes before election ever since the mid-winter exhibition of the painter's work at New York's Museum of Modern Art.

"I don't like it," the proprietor complains. "I hate to see him becoming a fad."

There is basis for his fears. A "Van Gogh scarf" is being sold over the counters. Several shops have decorated their windows around large Van Gogh prints. One upper-crust department store has featured Van Gogh colors in everything from women's underwear to dog blankets.

In the Village beer gardens and studios they are speculating on the effect the craze will have on his permanent reputation.

Personally, we incline to the suspicion that the Van Gogh epidemic is a symptom of a great hunger in the American cultural stomach. Perhaps what people want most is only an introduction to good art and good artists.

Van Gogh, thanks to several readable biographies, has recently had that introduction to a goodly portion of the literate public. The fact that he cut off his ear made him good newspaper copy. And at the Modern museum here and in Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland and San Francisco, a total of more than 300,000 persons have had a firsthand introduction to his paintings.

Like our friend, the art shop proprietor, we would hate to see Van Gogh become a fad, for fads generally are a prelude to obscurity, but it would be all right with most of us if prints of paintings by Van Gogh and some of his kind replaced the meat-market calendar painting which for so long has been about all that has been introduced for public consumption.

We have been delving into figures again and we have Ray Henderson's calculations for it that with luck Katherine Cornell will play her last "Saint Joan" (for the time being, anyway) in San Francisco in July with the books almost balanced on the production.

To us, this was an amazing revelation and should call forth another 21-gunner for Miss Cornell's sincerity in behalf of the drama. It isn't that Miss Cornell is not keen on showing a profit but simply that she does not let fear of a loss prevent her going financially spurs over helmet when she feels that "Saint Joan" should have its finest presentation.

The play will close its 10 weeks in New York late in the month and start immediately on a seven-and-a-half-week tour which will carry it to Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Nearing its ninetieth performance here, "Saint Joan" has averaged some $2,800 a performance gross, yet the cost of the production, Bernard Shaw's sizeable royalties, and the expense of maintaining a cast of more than 50 players bring the total to such a figure that not until the take in the San Francisco box-office is counted will it be known if the show is out of the red.

Tours, France—Louis Mabileau killed himself today. He shot himself in the head twice, but the bullets glanced off with only superficial damage. He jumped into the Loire, but swam ashore. He went back home, drank poison and hanged himself in his barn.

VOICE OF THE PAST.

Hollywood—Twenty-three years ago Norman Taylor, former vaudeville player, worked with the late Thomas Edison in an effort to perfect talking pictures. Today Taylor is an extra in the "talkies." He said he and his partner tried to synchronize spoken dialogue with a wax record "and some other contraptions" Edison had devised in 1913.

CRACK OF DAWN.

La Salle, Ill.—John Demes awakened from a sound sleep, turned his head suddenly to look at the clock and felt a sharp pain in the neck. John said he thought at first it was just an ordinary stiff neck but at the LaSalle hospital they discovered he had a fractured vertebra. The doctors curbed his clock-watching with a plaster case.

REFORMS GREATER THAN AAA, NRA AND GUFFEY ACT IN SOCIALIST PARTY PLATFORM

4-CLUB ACTIVITY HERE ON INCREASE

TWO NEW GROUPS FORMED IN FAYETTE COUNTY

Activities of 4-H Clubs in Fayette county have noticeably increased with the coming of the summer months.

Two new clubs have been organized—one in Washington C. H. and one at nearby Yatesville. "The Jolly Workers" were organized at Central School with Miss Odessa Stevens as the leader. This club is made up of girls living in and around Washington C. H. and has an enrollment of thirty-eight.

The election of officers of the Jolly Workers was held with the following results: President Joan Green; Vice President, Mary Williams; Secretary, Mary Bellar; Recreation Leader, Bobbie Lou Faruhar; News Reporter, Martha Jean Easter.

At Yatesville the club was organized by Mrs. Homer Emery, and the following officers were elected: President, Stanley Spears; Vice President, Robert D. Sommers; Secretary, Beatrice Sommers; News Reporter, Bonnie Moats. Several games were played and the meeting was ended by singing and Lang Sang. This club advisorship is to be taken over by Miss Theresa Morris of Ohio State University.

The "Bookwalter Merry Mixers" held a meeting at the home of Virginia L. Vannorsdall in Bookwalter. A business session was held with Jane Ellen Seibert presiding. 4-H books were distributed and assignments were made by Freda Lou Coe, the advisor.

Mrs. Jean Nisley's "5 Vitamines Club" held a meeting Wednesday at the home of Lois Cavinee. The hostess presided over a short business session following which the girls discussed problems in their project work books with Mrs. Nisley supervising the discussion. June Montgomery, the game leader taught the girls several new games.

MARK LAUNDRY

Yes, and in all kinds of weather

You don't have to take a Mule-Hide roof South when Winter comes. It will protect you right through the worst conditions the weather man can pour out. Mule-Hide is intentionally made to stand up under the baking heat of summer AND the sub-zero punishment of wintry sleet and snow.

If you were going to "trade-in" your roof every year, buying a cheap roof might be sensible. But, like automobiles, long life in a Roof can only result when the manufacturer puts into his product something more than good materials—such as scientific knowledge, long experience, and an earnest desire to build a better roofing than anyone ever made before. Products made like that will still be giving service long after you've decided that you've had your money's worth. Mule-Hide Roofing is that kind of a product. It was made tough and sturdy for use on the farm—then beautified to do credit to the finest dwelling.

Think of your neglected roofing now, give some attention to the one outside surface of your home that means most in the way of protection—then re-roof with Mule-Hide and you'll have sure protection for many years to come.

This Trade-Mark on every roll is your protection and guarantee of satisfaction.

WASHINGTON LUMBER CO.

National Convention Is to Be Held in Cleveland During Week-end

Cleveland, May 22—(P)—Constitutional change to legalize social-economic reforms going deeper soft-coal act—all invalidated by the Supreme Court—will be one of the principal immediate proposals of the socialist party in the 1936 campaign.

Socialist leaders, here for the national convention opening tomorrow, were agreed today the platform would contain the principle, if not the text, of the so-called "workers and farmers rights amendment," recently introduced in Congress by Senator Benson, Minnesota farmer-laborite.

The socialists urged the introduction of the Benson amendment, which would give to Congress full regulatory authority and virtual domination of the economic and social life of the nation.

It would give to Congress the power to regulate and prohibit child labor; to regulate hours and wages and guarantee the right of collective bargaining; to provide for all forms of social security; to regulate and operate agricultural marketing agencies; to acquire and operate such basic industries "as are essential to the social and economic welfare, such enterprises to be governed democratically for the benefit of the public."

To effect orderly and progressive change, Norman Thomas said, in discussing the Benson amendment, "such constitutional revision is essential."

Criticizing the Supreme Court's Guffey decision, Thomas, the national leader of the party, said:

"The justices of the Supreme Court, who joined in the majority opinion invalidating the Guffey act, are, themselves, the most dangerous advocates of violence in the United States."

In "Budget Leak"?

J. H. Thomas

Linked by witnesses to an alleged "budget leak", British Colonial Secretary J. H. Thomas is pictured leaving his home in London to attend another session of the judicial inquiry. The inquiry concerns rumors that a leak on government tax proposals had permitted certain persons to clean up $500,000 by insuring against a rise in taxes. Although Thomas reiterated his innocence of knowledge of the leak, his resignation from the cabinet was considered imminent.

PLOW TO FOLLOW SWORD IN ETHIOPIAN AS ROME BUILDS UP NEW EMPIRE

(By the Associated Press)

Mussolini's announcement that four-fifths of his 500,000 soldiers and workmen in Ethiopia will remain as settlers, heralds the second phase of modern Roman empire building in East Africa.

Seven months, from the day the first tank roared off toward Addis Ababa, saw Italian troops successful in crushing Ethiopia's defense.

Fifty years is the period mentioned in official circles in Rome as the probable time required to realize Il Duce's dreams for developing the territory.

Italy's primary hope of profit in Ethiopia, it is said in Rome, lies in cultivation of coffee and cotton, which she now imports from South America and the United States.

Broad Highland Pasturage

Other Ethiopian agricultural resources listed in a survey of the country's potential wealth made by the semi-official publication, "L'Azione Coloniale," include broad highland pasturage and soil suitable to wheat and oats, some so fertile it will produce two crops a year.

A vast fortune in gold, platinum and other minerals also waits only the hands to wash it from riverbed sands, according to the same publication. And always there has been wild speculation since Italy manifested her interest in the territory.

Italy already has some experience in cotton cultivation in North Africa. In Eritrea, whose highlands are similar in geology and climate to those of Ethiopia, cotton of the excellent Egyptian staple known as "sakellardis," now is raised.

Coffee beans are grown in many provinces of Ethiopia. In Harrar, it is said, the coffee furnishes a product not inferior to the mocha of Arabia. In Lekenpti, production per plant compares favorably with that of Brazil.

'Genius For Colonization'

With Italian colonists providing the initiative, authoritative sources in Rome are convinced Italy will be able to produce in East Africa a colonial record comparable with those of the other great imperial nations.

They point out that Italy has a genius for colonization which is evidenced in her accomplishments in Libya. They also speak of the technical skill Italian engineers have contributed to the development of South American countries and take pride in the places her sons and daughters have made for themselves in the United States.

Italy holds that her methods for Ethiopia have been well tested in Eritrea and Somaliland. First will be the question of constructing roads and developing other means of transportation.

Her second problem will be establishment of friendly relations with the natives.

Then Italy's surplus population according to plans announced long ago, will filter gradually into unoccupied areas and be established through some such system as the homesteads by which the United States stimulated settlement of the west.

REPUBLICANS' REPORT SAYS DEMOCRATIC CAMPAIGN BOSSES SHOOK DOWN RELIEF WORKERS

IRRIIGATION PLANNED TO HALT PERIL BY FLOODS

Havana (AP)—Through recently announced irrigation projects the Cuban government expects to inundate waters that have taken lives and destroyed property for years. It will use the water to irrigate more than 2,000 square miles of farm land.

At present money crops in Cuba are raised during the dry season from December until April—a period in which rainfall practically zero and rivers almost dry. Engineers are surveying the possibilities of building reservoirs in the Organ Mountains of Pinar del Rio Province. The project would provide waterpower and give year-around irrigation for 330,000 acres of rich land. Another project being studied is to do with the Trinity Mountains watershed in the southern part of Santa Clara Province. The third, and most important from agriculture and safety standpoint, is the Cauto River plan in Oriente Province, involving 660,000 acres.

The Cauto River rises west of Santiago in the Sierra Maestra Mountains, flows northeast of Santiago, then doubles back to the west to empty into the bay of Guacanayabo near Manzanillo. It is Cuba's greatest river and has taken thousands of lives in floods.

EARL HANEFELD MAY BE CHAIRMAN

Columbus, O., (AP)—The new Democratic State Central Committee met Friday for organization with indications that Earl H. Hanefeld of Ottawa, State Director of Agriculture, would be named chairman and Francis Poulson, of Cleveland, reelected to head the party state executive committee despite rumored opposition. Reappointment for Poulson would mean that he would manage the Democratic campaign again this year.

Democrats on Committee in Majority Report, Say No Evidence to Warrant Allegation

Columbus, O., May 22—(AP)—Dispute marked today what may be the final chapter of a sensation created in March, 1935, by Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins' assertion that he had "incontrovertible evidence" that campaign workers for Martin L. Davey shook down firms dealing with the old state relief administration.

A minority report, signed by two Republicans, of a legislative committee which investigated the charge, said:

"We found that employees of the state relief organization, with the knowledge and consent of the officials of the democratic state organization, had made a canvass of those having business dealings with the relief administration of the state of Ohio and had secured and turned over to the democratic executive committee a large sum of money amounting to at least $9,500."

This directly contradicted the majority report, signed by three democratic representatives. It said the testimony obtained by investigators and in public hearings at a cost of $10,000 showed "that there had been no shakedown."

State Democratic Chairman Francis W. Poulson, immediately on announcement of the minority report yesterday, some months after the majority report, said he had refused to accept any money collected through relief channels.

Kaser and Reps. John De Righieri (D-Cuyahoga) and Harold P. Miller (D-Lucas) signed the majority report, and H. T. Phillips (R-Athens) and George Arnold (R-Preble) the minority.

Kaser said he agreed with practically all the minority report except the portion alleging the shakedown had taken place. He declared $3,000 had been collected from firms handling relief business, but that Poulson had refused to accept it.

The two Republicans qualified their assertions with:

"We were unable to find where any crime had been committed, but we are of the opinion that such actions were extremely reprehensible and something which should not be countenanced or practiced by any political organization."

Their report added, however, that "we were unable to determine the exact cost of administering relief in the state because of what appears to be extensive falsification of the records."

Powerful Interests, Tying Up Senate Investigation Funds, Halt Rail Probe

By LESLIE EICHEL

Powerful interests still have powerful sway in Washington.

That is the word emanating from the forces trying to bring about an investigation of railroad holding companies.

The public has 20 billion dollars invested in railroads, according to Washington estimates. The railroads, of course, have been heavily overcapitalized, "watered," in the past. That is their trouble now. But worse, the watering has continued through holding companies, liberals assert.

And the chief offender has been the Van Sweringen interests, the liberals charge.

The Van Sweringen roads have blocked every effort by which the government could unravel the skeins of their empire, much of which has gone through reorganization with terrific loss to the investor.

BLOCKED

Last year, the senate's interstate commerce committee of 20 members, with Senator Wheeler of Montana as chairman, unanimously recommended that the senate allot $25,000 to its special senate committee investigating railroads.

The senate's auditing committee gave consent to the measure.

This special senate committee thereupon employed as its counsel Max Lowenthal, brilliant young lawyer of New York, who has specialized in investments. Lowenthal is the author of "The Investor Pays," a startling resume of the means by which the investor does pay.

Lowenthal immediately proceeded to uncover facts for the special committee that put the railroads on their guard. In particular, the Van Sweringen roads, enveloped by a multitude of holding companies, resisted.

Enough "pay dirt" was uncovered to indicate conditions that, if exposed, would bring strict regulatory laws, because of public indignation. But here is where the committee's money ran out. And, fundless, investigators could not proceed.

MYSTERY

Whereupon the 20 members of the senate's interstate commerce committee again voted unanimously—this time to request $100,000 to carry on.

The measure calling for the appropriation went to the senate's audit and control committee. There it has reposed for some six weeks—although this committee usually gives its judgment in two or three days. But here this particular measure has lain—and liberal senators wonder how it can be forced out on the floor of the senate for passage.

Senators Byrnes of South Carolina is chairman of the senate's audit and control committee. Other members are Senators Tydings of Maryland, Bachman of Tennessee, and Townsend of Delaware. All are anti-liberals.

BANKRUPTCY

The 1933 railroad reorganization law has been especially helpful to railroad holding companies and disastrous to investors.

Insiders, who dissipated the money, actually are given court protection, while investors are robbed of their rights.

It is as if a man were held up by a robber and when the robber was caught the victim was forced to pay a fine for being robbed.

The Missouri Pacific, a Van Sweringen line, has been cited to this writer as a case in point.

VICTIM AN INTRUDER

Then, the other day, a senator, probably guilelessly, offered an amendment to the federal bankruptcy act which caused the hair of liberals to stand on end—when they accidentally read the contents of the bill.

It would further intrench the few men who manipulate a holding company. They would be supreme in an organization, be legalized. The investor would be an intruder.

At least, so an able attorney interpreted it to this writer.

This amendment was desired by the Howard C. Hopson interests, it has been freely asserted in Washington. Hopson, it will be recalled, was the utilities promoter who disappeared when desired for questioning by the senate lobby investigating committee. Chairman Black finally had Hopson produced.

Some of his stockholders later protested his spending $75,000 apiece for lawyers and a million or two (of stockholders' money) to fight the utilities holding company bill. But the stockholders found that their investments entitled them to few rights.

WHAT IS WHAT? Railroad holding companies are peculiarly tangled. The senate's investigators, trying to enter the Van Sweringen maze, have been balked because the holding companies that control the holding companies that control the railroads are not railroad holding companies, but innocent-appearing investment or real estate holding companies. They are shocked when asked anything concerning railroads. And their documents are somewhere else.

PLEDGE PUTS SAFETY ABOVE TIME SAVER

Charlotte, N. C. (AP)—A "safe driving" pledge signed by drivers of a bus company operating out of Charlotte reads in part:

"I believe a minute lost in avoiding a possible accident will not change the course of business, the rotation of the earth or the permanence of my job.

"I believe, above all, that it is smart and praiseworthy to possess a reputation for cautious instead of daredevil driving.

"And, finally, I practice what I preach."

Napoleon Called It "Une Grande Folie"

Must Britons be condemned forever to wallow in filthy soot, noxious smoke, train oil and tallow And their poisonous fumes forever to swallow? For with sparky soots, snuffs, and vapors, men have constant strife; Those who are not burned to death, are smothered during life.

—Frederick Albert Winsdor... an answer to his critics.

When, on the twenty-eighth day of June, 1804, Frederick Albert Winsdor succeeded in lighting the Lyceum Theatre with gas, no one criticized him. But when, a short time later, Winsdor announced that he would soon illuminate all London with the same fuel, a deluge of ridicule broke on his head. Sir Walter Scott, the novelist, thought he was a madman. Napoleon dismissed his project as "une grande folie" (a big humbug). Actors burlesqued his notion from the stage. The dull and the superstitious thought him a devil escaped from Hell.

Yet, such was the man's clear-sightedness and perseverance that the ridicule and contempt aimed at him from every quarter of Western Europe only pushed him on to greater efforts. Against the almost unbelievable odds of prejudice and disbelief, he laid the first gas mains in city streets; illuminated the Pall Mall; and, in 1812, formed the first gas company.

Today, the industry founded by Frederick Albert Winsdor has more than a thousand uses aside from lighting. In the United States alone, it supplies heat to two-thirds of the people—heat for cooking, baking, maintaining an ample supply of hot water, and warming the home. Serving over 8,000 cities, towns, and villages, it employs 120,000 people and represents an investment of over 5 billions of dollars in equipment and buildings, in pipe lines and city gas mains.

The present-day development of the gas industry, amazing as it may at first appear, has not been due to chance. The gas industry has reached its present status because of its devotion to the ideals of efficiency, service, and human comfort.

THE CAMDEN RUBY MURDER

by ADAM BLISS

READ THIS FIRST:

Detective Keyes and Gary Man-han are attempting to unravel the mysterious murder of Margalo Younger, an actress and old friend of Maughan. She was killed with a needle-like instrument as she and Maughan sat in the home of Don Van Every, a collector of rare jewels, whom she had met through his friend, Maughan, listening to his "murder" history. At the time she was wearing the ruby against the wishes of Van Every who described it as a "murder stone". Among those questioned by the detective were Maughan, himself; Van Every; his young niece, Joyce, who lives with him; her fiancé, Allan Foster, who at one time
 was in love with the dead actress, and Joyce's companion, Laura Randall. Another suspect is Roy Barri-dall, more, close friend of the actress, who shot himself shortly after her death.
 Van Every tells Maughan how he brought the ruby from two nuns.
 Joyce confides to Maughan that she has secured a job in a department store against her uncle's wishes.
 The detective and Maughan start for the home of Mrs. Bryce, an intelligent friend of Van Every. Keyes and Maughan learn from Mrs. Peoples, Margalo's maid, that the actress recently had given a check for $7,000 to a friend, Manuel Gonzales.
 Margalo's maid brings a ruby, found in one of the galoshes of her dead mistress, to the detective. It is an exact duplicate of Van Every's and finally it is a fake.
 (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 25

THE INQUEST next morning lasted about an hour. Van Every and I testified, along with a dozen other witnesses, and the verdict was what we expected—that Margalo Younger was murdered by "persons unknown".

In Keyes' office, the detective started to pace the floor, chewing on an unlighted cigar.

"I'm not getting any place, Maughan," he muttered.

"What about Gonzales—Margalo's poet friend?"

"Ought to be here now. Late."

"Where was he yesterday?"

"Out of town, apparently."

"How's Baltimore this morning?"

"Same. I'm getting worried about him. He may die."

A buzz on his phone, and he picked up the receiver. When he hung up, after a moment, he turned to me,
 surprise in his hard blue eyes.
 "Young Foster wants to see me."

Foster sat down, nodding to both of us pleasantly. I wondered idly how the chap would feel if he knew his fiancée was one of the army of workers at Gribbel's. Joyce had probably told him the same story she fed her uncle.

"Hear Joyce is working for you, Mr. Maughan?" He seemed pleased about it anyway. "Nice of you,
 I've been trying to get this working idea out of her head."

"Yes," I murmured.

"Now what is it, Foster?" Keyes asked abruptly. I was thankful for his interruption, not relishing Foster's questions about Joyce.

"Well, I've been thinking, sir. A
 lot. About the night Mar-Miss Younger was—murdered."

Keyes tapped the desk with his fingers, and sighed as if he expected to get little information from Foster.

"You know that I was there that night?"

"Yes, and I know you accompanied Miss Van Every upstairs."

"Yes, I did." Definitely.

"How long did you linger near the library door, after she had gone upstairs?" Keyes asked crossly.

"I watched Joyce go upstairs, and then when she was near her door, I started down."

"A minute? Two minutes?"

"Not longer than two minutes, sir.
 I'm sure."

"Just the time it took her to get up the stairs?" the big captain was watching Foster closely. Suddenly I felt sorry for the boy. "In that time did you look back into the library?"

"I did just before I went down. A glance, that's all."

"Why didn't you tell me this yesterday?"

"I—I didn't think it necessary."

"I understand Miss Van Every had left the door open when you entered the house. Was it open when you reached it? The front door?"

"Yes, it was."

"Open all the time you were upstairs?"

"I suppose so, sir. It was ajar about a foot when I reached it and went down the outside stairs."

"Miss Van Every told me that it was barely open when you came up.
 Did it seem to you that it was open wider when you went down?"

"I—I couldn't tell you that. I don't remember, but as I look back over that night, I think, no, I know there was a taxi outside waiting."

"A taxi? Why didn't you tell me this yesterday?" Keyes was exasperated.

"It isn't out of the ordinary to see a taxi pulled up to the curb any place. It wasn't right against the Van Every curb, it was nearer the house on the left. I went up to the driver, the motor was running,
 and asked him if he had a passenger. He said yes, so I walked a couple of blocks down the street, and found another."

"What had you done with the taxi
 you came in?"

"Joyce told me to dismiss that one."

"Can you describe this taxi driver?"

"No, it was a black and white cab, that's all I remember about it. The lights were on, and the motor running."

"Can't you remember anything about the driver?"

"No."

Keyes reached for his telephone,
 and began giving directions rapidly.

A black and white cab had been traced to the Van Every residence around 1:15 Tuesday morning. He wanted all the information possible concerning the passengers and the driver. When he hung up, he flung away his cigar and took a fresh one,
 biting off the end savagely.

After Foster had gone, he called
 Dr. Narro, and, luckily finding him in, asked him if he had noticed a black and white cab outside the Van Every residence Monday night when he had attended Miss Younger. He could see his disappointment as he thanked Narro.

"Wasn't there when Narro came,"
 he announced to me.

We were talking over the black and white cab when Gonzales was announced. I looked at him curiously as he sat down. A short man, probably five feet six, slender, swarthy skinned. His hair was glossy black, and from his temples

spread in long, narrow sideburns.
 His brown eyes did not seem to me
 poetic or dreamy; they were quick, alert, alive. He was handsome despite the fact that his features were rather coarse.

His clothes annoyed me more than a little: his suit cut in too much at the waist, the revers too broad for his thin shoulders, his shirt, light
 brown with brown collar and cuffs, dove-colored spats. A large pearl in his blue tie, a big diamond ring on his left hand. If I had not known him to be a poet, I would have thought he was a poet. I would have thought him to be a second-story man. But I remembered vaguely seeing something of his in a magazine—I could not recall what magazine. Then, rather good I had thought at the time. Frothy stuff, but readable.

Seeing the man I could not recommend Margalo's friendship for him.
 Yet Mrs. Peoples had said he was one of the most frequent visitors to the apartment, indeed he was welcome there always.

His age was hard to determine, but I put him down at 30. He was younger than that, I found out later.
 Twenty-seven.

"I have been out of town," he said quickly. His English was perfect.
 I don't know why I expected it wouldn't be. I could see, too, he annoyed Keyes, and the detective expected to make quick work of him.

"Where?" Keyes shot.

"In Washington. My brother was having trouble with the immigration people. I had to go there to help him." Quietly he gave Keyes the name and present address of his brother, and the people he had seen in Washington.

"You knew Miss Younger?"

"Very well, sir. She was my good angel."

"You were not in New York, then,
 Monday night?"

"No, sir. I was not."

Idly Keyes tossed a check across the desk. I caught a glimpse of as Gonzales picked it up. Seven thousand dollars made out to Manuel Gonzales, signed Margalo Younger.
 It was indorsed on the back.

"Was Younger gave this to you
 last week?"

"Yes, sir."

"What for?"

"It was a loan, purely a loan. Now and then, she lent me money."

"Ever as much as this before?"

Keyes knew she hadn't from her bank statements.

"No, this is the largest amount she ever lent me."

"Did you ever pay back any of her loans?"

"Not yet, but I shall. She was always very good to me, realizing how little a poet can make."

My contempt for the dapper poet increased.

"What did you use this money for?" Keyes pocketed the check, carefully putting it back in his billfold.

"My brother came over from Spain. My mother needed money.
 She is still there, and sick. I had to have money to live."

"You gave Miss Younger no receipt for this?"

"No, her check was her receipt."

"Did you agree to pay this off on a certain time? This loan?"

"When I could, that's all."

"And this, Gonzales, have you ever seen this?" The ruby Mrs. Peoples had found in Margalo's overshoe slid across the desk. Gonzales looked at it curiously, picked it up in his fingers, then shook his head. "I have never seen this before. Beautiful, isn't it?"
